

5km Handicap – November 2019 results

I suspect it was something to do with a certain sporting event but the turn out for the November round was noticeably low and the England Rugby team weren't the only ones who were below par, with no PBs and only four people beating their baseline handicap. Viv Hardwick was closest to his PB on the day being some 20 seconds off it, which is still a good performance considering how much he has improved this year, and Dave Jones had the highest Quakers age-graded score on the day. Grainne Duffy and Lisa Bowerbank were their usual much improved selves while behind them the other main contenders for this year's trophies jockeyed for position. A little further down the table it was nice to see Sally Watson get her first top 10 placing.

In the battle for 2nd and 3rd, Viv Hardwick managed to swap a few more points to hold onto his second place while Phil Rutter completed his 9th round to land one point behind Viv. Both have a 91-point round as their worst score that they can swap, so it's a case of who wants it most. Helen Clarke slips down to fourth but she has a few more points to swap, as does Gill Colling in fifth. Having held onto second place for most of the competition, Mike Watson might be regretting his no-show in this round (unless he's South African) as his consistency hasn't left him with a poor enough round to swap for the points he needs. Not the case for Grainne though, whose year of two halves means she could swap her April score and finish on 259 points if she wins again next month. Really don't know who my money is on.
